

IFEANYI EPHRAIM AWUNOR

Prospective PhD Candidate

Historical and Cultural Studies | Performance & Ritual Studies

Academic Portfolio

Research Profile

I am a researcher trained in Theatre and Performance Studies with an interdisciplinary focus on cultural history and historical anthropology. My work examines migration, cultural hybridity, ritual performance, masquerade traditions, and traditional authority in West Africa.

Education

Master of Arts (M.A.) in Theatre Arts, University of Benin, Nigeria (2023)

Thesis: Rebirth of African Theatre: Austin Asagba's Prodigy of Essence

Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) in Theatre Arts, University of Benin, Nigeria (2020)

Project: A Critical Analysis of the Concept of African Theatre: Sam Ukala's Folkism

Publications

Awunor, I. E. (2025). Dramaturgical challenges of moral characterization in Nigerian plays. Benin Journal of Music and the Arts, 4.

Awunor, I. E. (Accepted). Traditional institutions as pathways to resolving governance dysfunctionalities in Nigeria. Nigerian Journal of Administrative Science, 7.

Proposed Doctoral Research

Migration, Cultural Hybridity, and Traditional Authority: The Cultural Formation of the Ubulubu Migrant Community in Nigeria

This project combines ethnographic fieldwork, oral history, and historical analysis to explore how migrant communities negotiate belonging, legitimacy, and authority through ritual practices.

Academic & Professional Experience

Training Coordinator, EPHIRA I.T & Educational Resources (2019–Present)

English Language Teacher, Living Stone College, Lagos (2010–2014)

Languages & Skills

English (Academic), Ubulubu (Native), Igbo (Conversational), German (Beginner).

Ethnography, oral history, archival research, APA academic writing.